The FC UTANGAMANO
Collection

"Utangamano—unity—emerges from the Kiswahili word 'tangamana', to intertwine.

It is not a statement, but a condition: of harmony, of convergence, of lives and legacies bound together. It is the quiet force that binds form to meaning, craft to memory.

Since 1907, Kenya's story has unfolded as a convergence of histories, faith, and becoming. From this continuum, enduring icons emerge shaped by grace, resilience, and a shared destiny.

Silhouettes echo memory. Details hold reverence. Craft becomes ceremony. The collection exists beyond trend or season, intended not to adorn the body alone, but to carry history worn as inheritance.

Each creation is conceived as part of a gallery work of couture: meticulously considered, individually complete, and collectively composed. Garments are treated as artifacts. Craft becomes ceremony. Couture transcends season to enter permanence.

The Iconic Utangamano Collection exists to refine heritage into form, unity rendered by hand, liberty worn with intention, and identity carried forward as inheritance.

The Liberty Gallery

Where Liberty Begins, The Shield Stands.
This first gallery is conceived as a foundational body of work where symbol becomes form and form becomes inheritance.

The Shield, long held as an emblem of protection, identity, and sovereignty, is refined here through disciplined craft and deliberate restraint.

Each piece is created not as an isolated accessory, but as part of a cohesive gallery work of couture: curated, complete, and enduring.

In this collection, adornment transcends decoration. Materials are chosen with curatorial intent. Finishes speak quietly. Meaning is paramount. What you hold is not seasonal fashion, but a wearable artifact, an expression of liberty rendered in permanence.

As a collector, you become a custodian of this first chapter. Unity begins with the Shield. And the gallery now lives with you!

The background of the entire page is a light, abstract pattern of overlapping palm fronds in shades of grey and green. In the center, there is a black rectangular box containing white text and logos.

PINS

The image features a wall covered in a dense grid of small, rectangular wooden lapel pins. The pins are arranged in a regular pattern, creating a textured, three-dimensional effect. In the foreground, a large, round, shallow wooden tray sits on a dark surface. Above the wall, a cylindrical light fixture with multiple small lights inside hangs from the ceiling. The overall lighting is warm and focused on the wall and tray.

More than just mere lapel pins, they are iconic emblems of liberty and the identity of every true Kenyan, which

The Destiny Gallery
movement as inheritance

The Destiny Gallery is an archive of iconic modes of travel between destinations that once defined not only how we moved, but who we became.

These are vehicles born into families, professions, and landscapes, machines that shaped childhoods, trained hands, and framed ambition.

For some, they were dream careers before they were possessions.

For others, they were classrooms without walls, offices without roofs, and passports to possibility.
Born in one.
Grew up in one.
Now, time to own one.

Each piece in the Destiny Gallery is curated as an artefact of purpose. Not restored into nostalgia, but preserved in truth, bearing the marks of distance, duty, and devotion.

They are not symbols of speed, but of service.
Not trophies of excess, but instruments of becoming.

This gallery honours transport as destiny: the vehicles that carried pilots to runways, wardens to frontiers, families to futures, and nations forward.

They stand as moving galleries where engineering meets memory, and ownership becomes custodianship.

The Destiny Gallery does not ask where you are going.
It asks where you come from and what journey you are finally ready to claim.

CUFFLINKS

A close-up photograph of a person's arm and hand resting on a red fabric. The hand is positioned near a small, light blue Peugeot 504 car model. The fabric is a deep red color and has a small, round, white button with a blue Peugeot logo on it. The lighting is soft, highlighting the texture of the fabric and the skin of the arm.

The Peugeot 504 is an icon of African mobility. An archive of motion, it tells the story of iconic modes of transport that were once dream careers.

Each piece is not merely acquired; it is inherited. A testament to journeys that shaped identity, to machines that carried purpose, to destiny made mobile
